COMTEC PRESENTATIONS work with WORLD LEADERS

16-09-2009 Manchester, UK

Comtec Presentations feature on BBC News; Tony Blair at the Ethnic Oscars and Gordon Brown at the TUC - a diverse and high-profile twenty-four hours for the Northwest's leading event specialists.

Gordon Brown addressed the TUC delegation in Liverpool's BT Convention Centre yesterday (15th September) about the state of the economy. This year's AFL-CIO, the American equivalent to TUC, is running concurrently meaning that the President from the AFL-CIO and General Secretary from TUC have been able to address each other's delegations across the Atlantic.

This year's TUC was held in Liverpool for the first time in over 100 years and this was the 12th consecutive year that Comtec Presentations had held the account.

At the same time, Comtec were also in London at the GG2 Leadership & Diversity Awards at which Tony Blair, who is currently the official Envoy of the Quartet on the Middle East on behalf of the United Nations, the European Union, the United States and Russia spoke. The awards were held at Grosvenor House Hotel in the heart of London's Mayfair.

Tony Blair spoke about faith and beliefs to the audience who attended the glitzy awards ceremony. The awards celebrate the success of diversity and leadership in the UK amongst ethnic minorities. This premier ethnic awards ceremony includes awards ranging from GG2 Man of the year to the Hammer Award recognising individuals that reach a rare position of influence and authority.

George Thompson, Sales & Marketing Director stated; 'We have worked with a number of politicians and famous faces over the year but saying we have worked with Gordon Brown and Tony Blair on the same day on two separate events is fantastic. Every thing ran to plan and we hope everybody enjoyed both guest appearances.'

Both events featured heavily on BBC news with regular updates from the GG2 awards featuring on BBC News 24 in the evening.
